Portraits for business should confirm the image of your entire company. Please choose the style of clothing to match the image that you want. The following are some suggestions to consider.

Solid colors photograph best, but if a pattern is necessary it should be limited to something very simple.

Styles - styles change every year and we suggest something that will last for the entire length of time until your next portrait.

Clothing Fit - the fit should be complimentary to the subject. Plan to dress as you would to meet with your most important client.

Color Portraits - Colors should be selected based on what is most flattering for each individual and his or her own preferences and the outward expression that you want your clients to see.

B&W Portraits - The main goal in planning for B&W is contrast. Black, Charcoal Gray, or Navy Blue jackets with a plain white shirt will produce the best images for brochures, newspapers, and newsletters. Please note that pastel colors, light blue as well as off white shirts or tops tend to look dull or muddy when printed in B&W and therefore should be avoided. If you have any questions at all, please call us or stop by the studio for more information.
